1. Had you ever visited the places in the pictures above?
2. Where would you go?
3. What would you do there?
4. Who would you go with?
5. How would introduce them to the world?

Practice 2. Read the following passage and study the vocabularies below!

Indonesia, a sprawling archipelago of more than 13,000 islands, is one of south-east Asia's most diverse treasures. Its remarkable and varied landscape contains innumerable contrasts, from spectacular rice paddy landscapes and dense jungle inhabited by exotic animals, to idyllic white sand beaches in Bali.

Firstly, Sumatra has made its name as one of the few remaining places in the world that you can still see wild orangutans in their native jungle. Perched along a river deep in the vast swathes of lush green rainforest, Bukit Lawang has no ATM, few guesthouses and this tiny village can only be reached by an arduous, pothole-plagued journey by road. But here the trekking guides gather, walking boots are laced and 200m away a simple stone rises out of the vegetation, stoically marking the boundary of the national park. This is where the adventures begin.

Next, if you are searching for a trip that comes with a flushing toilet, however, then travelling across Java, the largest of Indonesia's islands, is a must-do. Easily-reached from fascinating Yogyakarta, a historic city dotted with temples and sultanate architecture, Borobudur is the largest Buddhist temple in the world. This colossal 9th-century complex took 75 years to build and dominates the rice-paddy field-covered landscape.

Lastly, for the sun-seekers and wave-hunters, Bali is surely heaven. Glorious sunshine and ice-cold beers greet you under parasols on the white sandy beaches known for their world-class surf. At sunset, volunteers can release baby turtles, just a few hours old, onto the beach and watch as they make their way into the ocean for the first time.
